1. They demand full coverage of benefits and oncological checks

Let's start with health. Andorra Endavant has registered a parliamentary question for the Government to specify a schedule for the full reimbursement of oncology benefits and for the third party payer. The training calls for follow-up tests for people who have already finished treatment to also be covered, because these checks can continue for years. It is a political demand, not a decision already taken. The point that needs to be clarified is which benefits are covered by the CASS today, which ones still require money to be advanced and on what date the system would effectively change. Without a documented response and a timetable, universal coverage cannot be guaranteed.

2. The Police announce checks of tires and chains from November 7 to 22

Let's move on to mobility. The Police have announced specific controls between November 7 and 22 to check vehicles' winter equipment. The obligation to wear suitable tires or chains has been in force since the first of November and extends until the fifteenth of May, even if there is no snow. The agents remind that, if winter tires are chosen, it is necessary to equip all four wheels, and that the chains must be compatible with the vehicle. Penalties depend on the offense and the driving conditions. It is therefore appropriate to distinguish the seasonal obligation to have equipment from the additional requirements when there is snow or ice. Before leaving, check the state of the road network.

3. The National Archives will move its funds to the old Rosaleda Hotel

And we finish with the documentary heritage. The Government has awarded the transfer of the National Archives funds from Prada Casadet to the annex of the old Rosaleda Hotel, in Encamp. The published amount of the transport is twenty-nine thousand nine hundred and eighty-one euros with five cents, and the scheduled term ends on the thirty-first of December. The outbuildings had already been adapted with previous works. The award is an administrative step; it does not mean that all the documents are already in the new headquarters. The fundamental question is how preservation, traceability and researcher access will be guaranteed during the movement of archives.
